

Elections Policies

1.0 PURPOSE:

The objective of these Elections Policies is to ensure effective and fair processes for the Students' Association of Mount Royal University (SAMRU) elections, elections appeals and referenda/plebiscites.

The Chief Returning Officer conducts duties under the following general principles:

1.1 Fairness to the eligible voters.

- a) Awareness of elections; information about candidates and issues including opportunity to question candidates; a clear process with information available about how votes are cast and counted; a one-vote per eligible voter limit.
- b) Opportunity to vote with easy access to voting and adequate space and time to vote.
- c) Freedom from candidate harassment including not having activities disrupted by the election process and clear limits on campaigning.

1.2 Fairness to the candidates.

- a) Requirements for candidacy are clearly defined; communications to candidates from the CRO is timely; expectations are defined.

1.3 Fairness to the process.

- a) Elections and Other Campaigns can be contentious but should remain respectful of the people involved, including the electorate, candidates and elections officials, and of the process.
- b) The Elections Policies are meant to offer clear expectations and guidelines by providing enough direction to ensure fairness. Sometimes flexibility in decision-making is required to protect this fairness. To that end, the CRO may make interpretations of the Elections and Other Campaigns Policies and Procedures based on the general principles set out above and is delegated the authority to make decisions where no policy or procedures exists.
- c) The Student Governing Board (SGB) shall have no authority to interpret or amend this document during an election (from the commencement of nominations until after the appeal period), or interfere with the discretion exercised by the CRO and the Election Appeals Review Board (EARB) in the furtherance of their duties pursuant to this document. Furthermore, during Elections, individual Governors who are also candidates are required to avoid work related to their Governor role that might contravene these Elections Policies or create a real or perceived conflict of interest.
- d) All SAMRU employees, including the current members of the Representation Executive Council (REC) may not interfere in the elections process. If an employee is also a member, they may vote in elections but otherwise should not involve themselves. Employees should direct elections questions or concerns to the CRO or designate. - 12.29.1 The gravity of the offence;
 - 12.29.2 The likelihood of the member or members committing a repeat offence;
 - 12.29.3 Any extenuating circumstances surrounding the offence;
 - 12.29.4 The existence of prior discipline against the member or members by any campus authority;
 - 12.29.5 The laws, legislation, Bylaws, or policy requirements for the situation;
 - 12.29.6 Risk and liability issues surrounding the offence;
 - 12.29.7 The level of harm or benefit to the appellant;
 - 12.29.8 The level of harm or benefit to the process or parties;
 - 12.29.9 The level of harm or benefit to other parties related directly or indirectly to the incident;
 - 12.29.10 The ability to contain or repair any real or potential damage resulting from the offence; and
 - 12.9.11 The ability to balance or compensate for any real or potential benefits resulting from the offence.
- 12.30 In certain circumstances where alternate sanctions are imposed, the EARB must explain why the listed sanctions were inappropriate and why the alternate sanction was substituted for the original.
- 12.31 Where decisions other than sanctions are being appealed and when such decisions are not clearly supported in policy, the EARB has the authority to review the decision(s) and may reverse the decision(s) based on a review of the following criteria:
- 12.31.1 Whether the decision was objectively made;
 - 12.31.2 The reasonableness of the decision based on past decisions of a similar nature;
 - 12.31.3 The severity of the impact of the decision in relation to the bylaw or policy violation;
 - 12.31.4 The impact of any potential or requested outcomes on current SAMRU operations including elections processes, and future SAMRU operations;
 - 12.31.5 The laws, legislation, Bylaws, or policy requirements for the situation;

 - 12.31.8 The level of harm or benefit to other parties related directly or indirectly to the incident of both the decision(s) under appeal and the potential or requested outcomes.
- 12.32 The EARB must also consider the following in its decision-making:
- 12.32.1 The safety and security of people;
 - 12.32.2 The issue of precedents for future decision-making on similar incidents;

 - 12.32.4 The integrity, credibility and predictability of organizational processes into the future.
- 12.33 In order to conduct its reviews, the EARB, or its designate, may interview the appellant and may interview witnesses to obtain as much information as possible about the incident and its circumstances.

DELIBERATIONS OF THE EARB

- 12.34 It is essential that the EARB deliberate on the accepted appeal once the review is completed. The EARB shall:
- 12.34.1 Always begin by recapitulating the facts;
 - 12.34.2 Only consider the evidence and arguments which have been gathered;
 - 12.34.3 Consider counter-arguments and differing interpretation of facts in the case; and
 - 12.34.4 Proceed to the issue and consider what interpretation is best supported by the facts once the facts have been confirmed to the satisfaction of the EARB members.
- 12.35 In some cases, the decision will emerge quite quickly and unequivocally from the facts. In other cases, however, the evidence may be less conclusive. In these cases, the EARB must exercise judgment in arriving at their decisions. They will do this by considering all the facts and arguments and then concluding, on the balance of probabilities, that one argument is more compelling than the other.
- 12.36 EARB members should consider the seriousness of the allegation and of the consequences(s) when deciding upon the basis of the balance of probabilities. The more serious the issue and outcomes the greater the need to establish the probability or likelihood of the act having been committed.
- 12.37 If, in the opinion of the EARB, the evidence supports each argument equally, then the EARB must rule in favour of the appellant.

DOCUMENTATION

12.37 The EARB shall maintain a record of deliberations, kept in the confidential SAMRU corporate records. This documentation should include:

12.37.1 The process including a list of participants and meeting times, and the date the decision was rendered.

12.37.2 An explanation of the issue under consideration by the EARB.

12.37.3 A summary of the evidence presented by the parties, including witnesses' statements. Where evidence provided is contradictory, the record should indicate which evidence was excluded and why.

12.37.4 Itemization of submissions received by the EARB.

12.37.5 A summary of the outcome, including any sanctions the EARB feels are appropriate.

COMMUNICATING THE DECISION

12.38 The Appellant and the CRO and any other relevant parties will be notified of the EARB's decision within three (3) working days of the decision being rendered.

12.39 The Chair of the EARB will submit a report to the SGB notifying them that an appeal has been filed, whether or not it was accepted, and when the appeal closed. At this time, the Chair of the EARB may also include any recommendations from the EARB on SAMRU Bylaws, policies or procedures relating to Elections.
